What a wonderful day we have had today! After science with Mrs Rubeli, we were again lucky to have Lee and Sue from CWA with us. After beginning mask-making with Sue, we headed into the classroom to begin preparation of lunch. No doubt we have some budding chefs in our midst. Minestrone. Mmmmmm.

Lunch was on our students and it was fantastic. The cooking smells coming from the kitchen had everyone looking forward to lunch with great anticipation. Thank you to Lee and Sue for again giving us a wonderful day.

The students are now studying gemstones, both precious and semi-precious. They have been very interested in the formation and properties of diamonds. [George found out that the Greek word for diamond means ‘unbreakable’.]

On Monday 22nd June, we will be visited by a geologist from the Martins Creek Quarry. This is part of our geoscience studies.

Newcastle Knights coming to Dungog

To lift spirits after the horrific floods in the Dungog and Stroud area nearly two months ago, the Newcastle Knights are coming to town next Tuesday.

The club is planning to bring a bus load of around 20 of their full time squad plus staff to lift spirits in Dungog and assist with a coaching clinic at the football ground.

They are also looking at getting some items to raise funds.

The visit was organised in part by Dungog Junior Rugby League Club secretary Lindy Hunt who was successful in getting former Knights’ coach Wayne Bennett to town on four occasions.

The team will arrive around 4pm next Tuesday, June 9, where groups of players will walk up and down Dungog’s main street handing out posters, taking photos with fans and visiting shop keepers.

“They will then make their way over to Bennett Park for a large group photo at 4.45,” Lindy said.

“The Knights will then be involved in a coaching clinic and the club is hosting a barbecue at the ground through to 6pm.

“Everyone is welcome to come along and meet the players and join in the clinic.”
